Verdict Of Accidental Death

NATAL, B. C. - "Accidental death with no blame attached" was the verdict of a coroner's jury investigating the June 19th, 1969. death of three miners, Robert Dancoisne of Coleman, Steve Tkachuk of Bellevue and Gerald Lewis Heath of Fernie, who perished in Balmer No. 1 mine of Kaiser Resources at Natal, B. C.

Notal, B. C.

The jury, under direction of Larry Cheston, coroner, included in their verdict that the three men had died at 11:30 am. by suffocation from flooding of the mine, and that evidence given at the inquest indicated the condition of the mine was good.

Jurymen were John Myles, foreman; William Robertson. Joseph Tappay, Angelo Zanon, Douglas Doberg, John Smith and Stanley Riley, all of Natal.

Evidence given by the three rescued miners, Donald Daniel Evans of Michel, Frank Kutcher of Frank and John Krall of Natal, showed that conditions in the mine were all normal and after the face, where the men were working, had been blasted, everything scemed normal for about 20 minutes.

A series of small bumps (release of gas pressure) followed by what Evans described as "a blasted big bump", started the mine vibrating and shaking. Kutcher stated "it was the loudest bump I have ever heard — It was a nightnare", and while the mine was shaking a deluge of water tore into the chamber.

Foreman John Krall, who had fired the shot for the crew, con-tore into the chamber.

Foreman John Krall, who had fired the shot for the crew, confirmed the other men's state ments that prior to the rush of water a series of bumps followed by "one severe bump, began the mine rocking and caving."

The men individually told a shocking story of being soaked with water and having to swim across the caved section to get into another area of the mine, where they became trapped.

The evidence indicated that an accumulation of water in old workings above the area where the miners were removing pillars had broken through into the section below, where the crew was working. The break-through is attributed to the loud bump which vibrated and shook the mine section severely.

Assessment And Tax Reduction

An advertisement was recently placed in daily and weekly newspapers by the Department advising owners of dwellings used for holiday or recreational purposes of their right to apply for an assessment and tax reduction in 1980, where eligible dwellings were located in Improvement Districts and Special Areas.

The notice has apparently caused owners of dwellings used for holiday or recreational purposes located in towns, villages, summer villages, municipal districts and counties, to think the assessment and tax reduction is not applicable to their dwellings. Hon. F. C. Colborne, Minister of Municipal Affairs, says that is they are able to meet the same conditions of eligibility as applies in Improvement Districts and Special Areas, the assessment and tax reduction applies to their property as well.

Property owners in areas other than Improvement Districts and Special Areas, the assessment and tax reduction applies to their property as well.

Property owners in areas other than Improvement Districts and Special Areas, the assessment and tax reduction forms. For this year only, the completed application form must be forwarded to the Municipal Secretary not later than July 13.

Bird Construction was the suc-cessful bidder for the tender to construct the new composite high school to serve the entire high school needs of the Crows Nest Pass School Division No. 63. The tender was accepted by the Board of Trustees subject to de-ductions of not less than $75,000, particulars of which are to be sub-nitted as a change order with the contract documents.

The tenders received by the board were: Oland Construction, $1,748,000; Kenwood Engineering,

$1,000,000.

The board studied student accident insurance and awarded the insurance for the Isabelle Sellon high school at Blairmore to Radford Insurance Agencies and the coverage for the Bellevue M.D. McEachern School and the Blairmore Elementary School of Lamey Insurance Agencies of Blairmore. Mrs. T. Ehlert of Lethbridge was hired by the division to teach a special education class at Coleman Central School.

The Family Life Centre, with Louis Guimond as Director and Counsellor, has been in operation for approximately one year. Prior to this time it was operated as the Family Service Bureau.

During the period of time from October 1 to December 31, 1988, Mr. Guimond provided 140 hours of counselling to 41 people. The value of this counselling service is important in that in its absence the nearest available help is only obtainable by travelling to Lethbridge or Calgary, which would mean time taken from work, additional expenses, etc. It can be stated, that for every family that is kept together through counselling, there is a considerable saving of public money. The saving referred to is money that would be spent if the family broke up, the mother and children ending up on welfare, and the father becoming an unemployed transient. Below are some of the types of counselling services offered, as well as other programs operated by the Family Life Centre: Counselling Services:

Report From Parliament Hill

Allen Sulatycky, M.P. Rocky Mountain

The action of the 17 Conserva-tive Members who voted against the Official Languages Bill on sec-ond reading in the Commons has again focussed the attention of the ond reading in the Commons has again focussed the attention of the public on this controversial legislation. It has also shown that the Government and those members of the opposition parties who favor the Bill have not adequately presented the Bill to the public.

Most of the opposition to this proposed legislation is centered in Western Canada, and particularly on the Prairies. Of the 17 members who opposed the Bill on second reading, 18 were from the Prairies and the other from Nova Scotia. Other than the 17 dissenters, the Members of the Conservative party favored the Bill, as did the New Democrats and the Creditistes.

Why is so much of the opposition before the control of the proposition of the control of the co

the New Democrats and the Creditistes.
Why is so much of the opposition located on the Prairies? It is obvious that this is so because the time has not been taken by Members of Parliament from this part of Canada to explain the Bill to their constituents. This fact becomes even more evident when one looks at some of the arguments which are being stressed against the passage of an Official Languages Act.
Opponents of the proposed Act are saying that it is wrong, a denial of democracy, to compel everyone to be bilingual. Others cemai of democracy, to compete everyone to be bilingual. Others say that by making both English and French the official languages, other languages spoke in Canada such as German, Italian and Ukrainian for example, will be endangered and those Canadians who do use such other languages will be accorded only second class etitizenship. Still others, including some well known jurists are claiming that the proposed legislation is not constitutional, that is, that it is contrary to the British North America Act and cannot be passed by the Government of Canada and the government of Canada and the governments of the provinces.

There are many other arguments being used, but the foregoing are the main once. Let's take a look at some of these arguments to see how they stank of the summer of the province of the Bill is simply to provide that in certain areas the services of the Government of Canada will not compel anyone to learn both French and English Inalian context, it is enlightening to read Section 2 reads as follows: "The English and French languages are the official languages of the Parliament and Government and expenses of the Parliament and Government of Canada and several english and presses and existed the section and possess and existed the section and existed and existed the section and existed and existed and existed the section and possess and existed the section and existed existed the section and existed existed the section and existed existed Parliament and Covernment of Canada, and possess and enjoy equality of status and equal rights and privileges as to their use in all institutions of the Parliament and Government of Canada." This is all which Section 2 says. English and French are the official languages of Parliament and the Government of Canada. It does not say that they are the official languages of the Government of Alberta or that all education is to be in English or French. It simply be in English or French. It simply states that so far as the Govern-ment of Canada, the Federal Government, is concerned, both langu-ages are official and may be used ages are official and may be used. Then we have the constitutional argument. There are some eminent lawyers who say the Government of Canada cannot pass such an act. Other equally eminent lawyers are of the opinion that the government is entitled to pass st. What is becoming increasingly clear, is that those who used to be constitutional argument against the Bill are opposed more to the principle of the Bill than to its alleged invalidity.

A special committee of Parlia-alleged invalidity.

A special committee of Parliament, of which I had the honor to be a member, studied the Bill clause by clause and it was decided by this committee of 12 Members of all parties that to investigate the constitutionality of the Bill would be beyond the scope of the committee. The arguments flavorable to the Bill are at the very least as good as those argainst it.

Thirdly there is the factor of ther language groups. Thirdly there is the factor of other language groups. , Section 38 of the Bill is specifically designed to preserve the rights of these groups and individuals. Indeed the entire argument that by becoming more tolerant of one minority group, one becomes less tolerant of all the others, breaks down in logic. Tolerance is a growing thing, not a self-defeating one.

Statement On

The Alberta Medical Association after a study of "drug abuse"; makes the following statement:

1 Accumulated evidence indicates that hallucinogenic and mind altering drugs, including LS.O. (lysergic acid diethylamide), S.T.P. (dimethoxy methylamphetamine). Amphetamines, and Marijuana, Barbiturates and related drugs, produce injurious and or physical effects.

2 Each of these is a potent substance with mind altering properties and toxic potential when taken by humans. Toxicity is dose-related but adverse reactions depend also, in part, on the unique nature and personality of the user.

3 We recognize that the increasing use of marijuana is causing much legal, social and medical researce. Thesefore, medical ing use of marijuana is caus-ing much legal, social and med-ical concern. Therefore special consideration has been given to consideration has been given to marijuana.

The evidence from scientific observations in Western countries has not as yet been compiled in a controlled and scientifically valid fashion. To contend that the use of marijuana is interefore harmless is not warranted. There is definize evidence of toxicity. After careful perusal of much published evidence from the World Health Organization and other authoritative sources we are of the Organization and other authoritative sources we are of the opinion that long term or chronic use of the drug produces psychic dependence. In the short term or intermitent use of marijuana the effects of use are unpredictable. Documented reactions include depression, panic or phobia reactions, flashback phenomena, hallucinations, psychotic episodes and development of an amotivational syndrome.

amotivational syndrome. We would suggest that the usage of the above - mentioned drugs be subject to continued legal control. We would also emphasize that illegal trafficking procedures might be subject to continued stringent legal penalties. This does not mean that present regulations and legal restrictions could not be improved upon.

Altitude Counts For Something Just. the other day I acted as food judge for the annual W. I.
district fair which was held in Cardston. One over-all comment which I made was in regard to the quality of cakes entered which I felt could have been somewhat improved. It then suddenly dawned on me that most recipes are calculated for low levels of altitude and that perhaps many of these ladies had neglected to make any adjustments or else did so improperly. Here are some hints which I hope will help you whether that special cake is for hubby or the "Blue Ribbon" at the fair:
-If living at an altitude of 2500
to 3500 feet reduce the leavening agent by % - 1/3 'easpoon less. For more delicate cakes reduce by the larger amount of 1/3 teaspoon; for heavier cakes such as chocolate, spice, ctc., reduce by the lesser amount of ¼ teaspoon.
2-If living at an altitude of 3500
to 5,000 feet make the following adjustments: (a). Add 1 level tablespoon of flour per cake.
(b) Increase baking temperature by 25°F.
(c) Decrease leavening agent
y 1/3 to ¼ teaspoon.
If No. 2 applies to you' don'
make all three adjustments at one. Start with "A" and note improvements. If not startling try "A" and "38" combination. Then try "C" and so on.

Try each singly and then in combination until you arrive at the best results.

Pilot Project In Water Safety

In Water Safety

A pilot project in water safety, pioneered by the Red Cross in Western Canada may establish new methods of teaching water safety to smaller communities throughout Canada.

The use of portable, movable pools exposes incressing numbers of young people to economical water safety instruction. The use of young training facilities have been effective in areas which have known high water accident fatality rates.

knife, Mr. Punchard will study the methods of swimming instruc-tion under shallow water situa-tions. He will also investigate the portable swimming pools, auxil-iary equipment, pool shelters and iary equipment, pool shelters and costs.

On his return to Toronto Mr. Punchard will advise the Red Cross and present recommendations to facilitate future development of such swimming instruction projects which may be undertaken in isolated rural areas that do not have the usual pool instruction facilities readily available in large communities. The project in the Northwest Territories is designed to encourage young people to participate in water safety instruction and reduce a drowning rate that is ten

"Being able to swim in such areas is not merely another pesiod of education," Mr. Punchard said. "It is more comparable to being able to read — an essential part of education."

Majority of Fires Due To Mischief

Due 10 Mischief
One would think that fraud would be the major reason for arson; however, last year, only 10 per cent of the incendiary fires in the province of Alberta were from that motive. The majority of 66 per cent were due to mischief. These are the findings of the Investigation Section of the Fire Commissioner's Office of the Department of the Provincial Secretary.

The four man Investigation sec retary.

The four man Investigation section spends most of its time investigating fires of a suspicious nature. Of 199 suspicious fires in 1968, 158 were determined as arson, or suspected arson. Forty-four charges were laid.

In 1967 there were 249 suspicious fires is an effective detercent to fire crimes. This could be the major reason for the improved record of 1968 over 1967.

Juveniles, ranging in age from seven to 15, comprise a large portion of those responsible for incendiary fires. There were 67 juveniles involved in 1968, 47 of whom were warned but not brought to court.

The motives for incendiary fires are complex but only six categor-ies: fraud 20, spite 16, mischief 132, revenge 5, mental 1, to cover up crimes 2, were revealed by the investigations last year.

What do our forests mean to

What do our forests mean uyou?

Perhaps you are guilty, as so many of us are, of taking for granted the value of our most abundant natural resources. Because we live in a portion of Alberta where trees are so plential, perhaps we never reallytake the time to assess their worth and simply regard them as something the time to assess their worth and simply regard them as something that merely exists.

It is obvious that there are people who think this way because there are still far too many fires that originated use to carelessness of the wisest and most careless animal, man himself.

As of June 23rd, in the Alberta "protection zone", there were 16 fires burning, all of which were under control. The breakdown was as follows: 3 in the Clearwater - Rocky Forest, 11 in the Footback Forest, and 1 in the Peace River Forest.

Rocky Forest; 11 In the Feace
Lake Forest, and I in the Peace River Forest.
The origin of these fires is unknown at present, but it is a fair guess that a majority were started by lightning.
What happens to an area, that has been raped by fire?
The first to suffer is the Wild Life in the immediate area.
Many are burned, others move on and many that return die because of a lack of food. Another result is the loss of the Water Shed and a rapid increase in crossion. Streams become polluted and yet another loss arises: the fish.
But somehow we don't really consider the Wild Life, or the Erosion, for we tend to consider the

So as a result man himself suffers the greatest. At least man is the only one that speaks out against this great violation and loss. Yet, how many fires are started by man himself.

started by man himself.

During our Centennial Year, while travelling through the "Shu-swap Lake" area in British Co-lumbia, a forest fire raged out of control for the better part of the summer. The origin of this fire was traced back to three man-made campfires that had been built by a group of trail-riders—one built in the morning, one at noon and one in the evening.
